Training for representatives of research staff at the Bydgoszcz University of Technology

On 19 November 2024, CAT ABW experts conducted a training session for representatives of academic staff at the Jan and Jędrzej Śniadecki University of Technology in Bydgoszcz on information security and cyber security.

They discussed, among other things, the specific nature of threats to research and development centres from external structures, indicated model solutions relating to the protection of sensitive data, as well as pointed out the most common mistakes made in this respect. During the training, it was emphasised that the risks of potential information leakage are now often associated with technological developments, especially in cyberspace.
